

confident and serious about my wish to be a photographer.

If you could give some advice to young photographers in Cambodia, what would you say?

I think, if they love photography, then they should try to know more about it by learning and research as much as they can. Then, do what you like deeply as a photographer, so that you can be happy with what you have done.